Help. Hope. Healing. JFCS introduced this tagline several years ago. Help and healing are tangible, but hope can be hard to define, hard to view as an outcome. Hope is not a destination, rather something that drives us forward. This year, we found hope was needed more than ever.

Against the backdrop of unimaginable pain, violence, and hate, we seek the light of hope — through the power of identity with our Jewish brothers and sisters worldwide, and through trust in those aligning themselves with us and supporting us.

Juxtaposed to the crisis in Israel, is the call to continue being a source of hope for those in need right here in our community. Recently, this was a call to grow our programs by leveraging our existing strengths in helping Jewish youth, their parents, community leaders, and Holocaust survivors find safe spaces of connection. It was also the task of showing up day after day for the broader community: the isolated senior, the family facing hunger, the neighbor struggling with anxiety.

And our team did that. They adapted. They showed up. They give us hope.

Now, hope must drive us forward. In June, we debuted a new five-year strategic plan with the vision to "Mobilize for Broader Impact." It is an adaptable, living plan giving us space to pivot, while providing a roadmap to how we will move our agency into the next chapter.

The success of our mobile pantry program is the model moving us into the next phase of bringing all our services into the community.

In this report you will find examples of how we have already started down this path by bringing our counselors into a local middle school to reach students and teachers, expanding accessibility to our pantry, and preparing to reach more seniors in need of care management.

We turn to you, our community of supporters, with hope. Hope that you will keep your local community in mind during year-end giving. Hope that you will strengthen JFCS as it begins this new chapter.

With gratitude,

growing with HOPE

The events of October 7th in Israel, the ongoing violence in the region, and the rise in antisemitism world-wide have consumed news reels, social media feeds, and day to day lives of those in our Jewish community. When facing these devastating events, the team at JFCS, like so many others, sought ways to help. As an agency, we identified ways to build upon our current programs to deliver support in direct response to these crises...

A SPACE for SURVIVORS

Each month, local Holocaust survivors are invited to Café Europa at Adath Israel Congregation in Lawrenceville where they are provided lunch, entertainment, and the chance to enjoy each other's company. In October, we organized an additional Café Europa prayer service, bringing together rabbis and cantors from multiple synagogues to provide a space for the survivors to process their emotions and find support in togetherness.

EDUCATION and UNDERSTANDING for YOUTH

In November, JFCS partnered with the Jewish Federation of Princeton Mercer Bucks, UNPACKED, and 11 synagogues and groups to present a special event for high school and college aged youth. The presentation by UNPACKED provided ways to address and cope with antisemitism online, to respond, to responsibly consume media, and take positive steps in making a difference. JFCS concluded the program with a discussion on the impact antisemitism has on mental health and provided tips for self-care.

This program was invaluable. I felt seen in the concerns I'm having for my children on their college campuses. The program resonated with what I am hearing from them about their fears and concerns and what is likely to become a long-term shift in identity as a Jewish person.

I found it valuable that the presentation targeted us as teenagers. Social media may not be the best news source, but that's the reality of where we are finding information. It was helpful to understand how to verify sources and responsibly share information.

—Ben, Gesher LeKesher participant

At my school, we have not discussed the rising antisemitism, so it was a great opportunity to inform us and teach us how to deal with it. It brought a sense of comfort knowing that when I see some of my classmates who also attended, to know that they're going through the same thing.

—Julia, Gesher LeKesher participant

—Stacey, mother of two college students

OUR COMMITMENT to this COMMUNITY

JFCS recognizes that the challenges for our youth and broader Jewish community will not fade overnight. Following the November program, our agency is offering individual and group support for coping with antisemitism and the toll this takes on mental health. Find up to date group information at JFCSonline.org/events.

moving forward. MOBILIZING

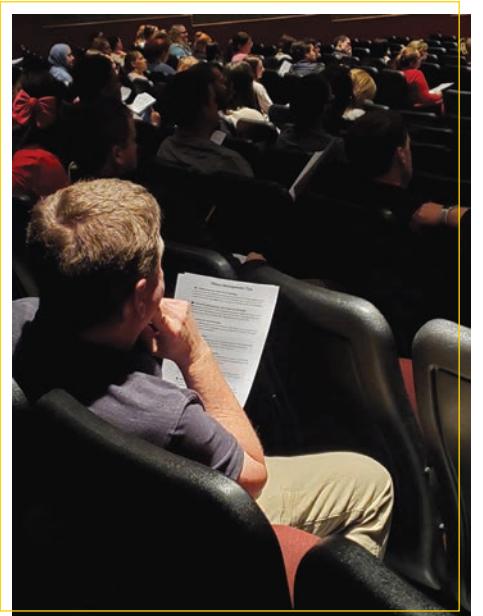

Our strategic plan is guided by the vision to mobilize — to bring our services and expertise into the community, making them more accessible to those who need help. We have already taken steps toward this vision in our clinical, senior, and food programs...

REACHING EDUCATORS and STUDENTS

The JFCS clinical team is partnering with Melvin H. Kreps Middle School in East Windsor to deliver on-site services for teachers and students. In early November, during teacher in-service days, a JFCS counselor delivered a self-care workshop for teachers and staff.

In the same month, JFCS also launched a small-group program for students. The weekly group for 7th and 8th graders focuses on social awareness, relationship skills, self-advocacy, self-esteem and recognizing strengths.

SUPPORTING SENIORS

With the support of a grant through Mercer County Office on Aging, the JFCS Senior Services department has been able to provide assessment and care management to vulnerable seniors across the county. Our care managers have helped seniors navigate benefit applications, identify local available resources for transportation, healthcare, and more, as well as connect them to additional services available through JFCS, such as Kosher Meals on Wheels. Care management services under the grant are provided free of charge to seniors who qualify.

Meet Kevin...

Kevin is 73 years old, living in East Windsor, NJ. He was feeling isolated and starting to feel the financial pinch of living on limited income as he ages. Our care manager helped guide him through housing applications and identify employment opportunities. Kevin was also connected with monthly Shabbat on Wheels deliveries.

I am so appreciative of the hard work, thoroughness, professionalism, availability, and demeanor of my care manager. She has helped lessen my anxiety about upcoming challenges and I know I will be calling her again when I face future ones.

—Kevin

EXPANDING ACCESS TO FOOD

Beginning in March, JFCS expanded the reach of the on-site pantry through the United Way of Greater Mercer County Ride United: Last Mile Delivery program. Utilizing DoorDash drivers, bags are picked up from our pantry and delivered directly to the doorsteps of 20 new clients on a biweekly schedule. These clients are homebound due to age or health conditions and are not associated with our established mobile pantry partners, making the DoorDash program the ideal solution with direct, personalized delivery.

WOMEN MAKING AN IMPACT

Our thanks to the current members of the JFCS Women's Alliance, supporting the program in its 5th year. This collective of 121 members raised almost $80,000 in support of the JFCS mobile and on-site food pantries.
